Amendments to the Specification:

Please replace the paragraph beginning at page 10, line 2 with the following amended paragraph:

The system disclosed herein may provide a new way to navigate dynamic content by presenting dynamic data in a streaming navigable and relational format and by building navigational portals based on a building of modular computer programs called navlets. Thus, the system may provide an organized way to present categorized and navigable information with a new class of application programs built on navlets or employing a single navlet. An interactive visual indication of a user-attractive resource, including a glyph and an interactive link, is presented to the user to provide an incentive to use the navlets.
